Merced County
Animals

Hundreds of animals per year are transported out of the Merced County shelter by New Beginnings for Animals' volunteers and their counterparts at no-kill rescue organizations all over the country.

Help for Merced County Animals

Our Mission:

New Beginnings for Merced County Animals is a non-profit organization dedicated to helping the animals at Merced County Animal Shelter. Our primary focus is reducing the shelter's euthanasia rate by networking with other rescue organizations and transporting our animals to them for adoption. We also take animals with medical issues out of the shelter and arrange for veterinary care. Many costs are incurred in everything we do for the animals, and we rely heavily on donations. Veterinary bills and fuel needed for our transports are our biggest expenses. All donations go directly to help the animals.
